NEARLY FORCED TO MARRY Harry Knapp, 24 years old, a cigarmaker, who boards with Mrs. Emmett, : Philadelphia, is locked up in the amdeu county jail, in default of $500 hail, on a charge of threatening to shoot the handsome daughter of his landlady ecause she refused to marry him.

Miss Elma Maud Emmett, 21 years old, a dashing brunette, employed by an Arch street firm as a typewriter and bookkeeper, is the complainant against Knapp, and the story told Mayor Westcett, of Camden, at the hearing Satur-dey, was a most sensational one. Miss E mett testified that Knapp had board with her mother for some time, and had been trying to induce her to marry h m for a long while. She had persistently refused, but Saturday noon Kaapp met her while she was out to less she went to Camden and became Knapp, she says, showed her a big revolver and a box of cartridges he had purchased after receiving his wages for the week at noon Saturday. He also said the week at noop Saturday, He also said be had been in correspondence with R.v. William Van Horn, of Camden, and had fixed Saturday afternoon for their wedding day. He threatened to shoot her on the spot unless she accom panied him, and fearing that Knapp ided to cross the river and trust to Luck was with her, however, although she had a narrow escape.

Upon reaching the residence of the minister the girl swoened away, but the clergyman thought it was from nervousness and excitement and not through fear. He revived the prospective bride with a few simple remedies, and then prepared the affidavit it is necessary to make out in such cases. Miss Emmett, after passing through this ordeal, fainted away again. Upon recovering consciousness she asked permission to go to the yard. Knapp first requested the minister to leave the room, and he did so. He heard high words pass between the couple, and Miss Emmett states that while the minister was absent Knapp pointed the the pistol at her breast and again threatened to kill her unless she went through the ceremony. The girl finally got the revolver away from finally got the revolver away from Knapp upon promising to do as he desired. Her intention was to reach the yard and sneak away with the pistol, but Knapp suspected some trick on her part and took the revolver back. He also insisted upon accompanying her wherever she went. Finally Rev. Mr. Van Horn began to suspect that everything was not all right, and he sent his wife to talk to Miss Emmett, and she told her the whole story while they were alone.

When the minister heard the status of affairs he went in search of a policeman. Knapp followed him and was handed into the custody of Officer Fitzhanded into the custody of Officer Fitz-simmons, who took him to the City Hall. Miss Emmett appeared there afterwards and preferred a charge of attempted murder against Knapp, and Preacher Van Horn produced the re-volver and cartridges which he had found concealed in one of the drawers of his desk. Knapp acknowledged hiding them them there, and Mayor Prescott praised the minister very Prescott praised the minister very highly for his action in the case.

Miss Emmett returned to her home after Knapp had been sent to jail.
